

Kevin Baughan, Director of Technical Strategy, Virgin Media

Kevin Baughan is an experienced and innovative telecoms professional with a proven track record of delivery for both UK and European Service Providers. In his current role, Kevin is responsible for Technical Strategy across the Virgin Media Group and is actively involved in understanding the business opportunities resulting from new technologies and in the overall evolution of Virgin Media's communication and entertainment portfolio. Prior to Virgin Media, Kevin was co-founder with colleagues at the University of Birmingham of a Start Up which carried out pioneering research into novel networking technologies for the US Air Force Research Labs. Kevin has also had a distinguished career with Nortel Networks, in both R&D and as their Chief Architect for Cable Operators across Europe. Kevin is an Honorary Professor at the University of Birmingham where he advises the communication networks research team and holds an MBA with distinction from Imperial College.